Thirty two years ago when I first began practicing law, I focused exclusively on tax and estate planning — creating trusts to avoid the time, expense and hassle of probate and to minimize or eliminate estate taxes.

Most of my clients now are not nearly as concerned about making their kids rich when they pass away as they are about making sure that they can retain what they've spent their entire lives acquiring. The name of the game today is asset protection: keeping hard-earned assets out of the hands of the bad guys, namely anyone trying to separate you from your money.

My philosophy is that in this crazy world, you can never be too safe or too secure. It makes sense to take some very simple preemptive steps now to ensure that when something unforeseen happens in your future, you're not knocked back to square one financially.

The best thing that can happen for you is to get all of your asset protection planning in place now and then never need to use it. What you're really buying is "sleep insurance." You can rest well at night knowing that no matter what bizarre things may happen to you in our litigious society, your assets will always be outside the grasp of those who want to grab them.

Do you have insurance on your home? Of course you do. Has any home you ever owned burned down? No. But you continue to maintain insurance on your home. Why? In case something happens.

Did you know that you are over 1,000 times more likely to get sued at some time in your life than something catastrophic happening to your home? Doesn't it make sense to make sure that your financial assets don't go up in smoke? For a fraction of the cost that you've spent for insurance on your home, you can easily protect your investments, savings, and other assets from the unknown and unexpected.

My door is always open for you to come in and chat about your personal situation. I am happy to offer recommendations on various options for protecting your assets and to let you know up front what we would charge for those services. The initial meeting is free. Thereafter, everything I do is on a flat fee basis.

I invite you to come in and meet with me for a complimentary consultation to review your situation. I look forward to assisting you to sleep better at night.
